GOLD MEDALLISTS RETURN.

London Airport welcomes Britain's two gold medal Olympic boxers - flyweight Terry Spinks and light-weight Dick McTaggart, who also won a cup for the best boxing style at Melbourne. They're the first British boxers to bring home Olympic gold medals for 32 years. Terry's mother and father are here - and so are half the cameras in London. A proud moment for these two modest youngsters - but rather an overwhelming one.

Both the boys say this is the worst part of boxing - all the fuss afterwards. But there it is! If they will go carrying gold medals for Britain at the Olympic Games, they must expect to be popular when they arrive home!
