

NEW STYLES IN FURNITURE.

Furniture for the homes of today is on show at Harle Court - and that includes everything from drawing-room desks which almost make letter-writing a pleasure, to coffee tables which look like almost anything - except coffee-tables.

At least this one looks like a table - but it, too, has its gimmick. Hey, you forget the crumbs! And talking of crumbs, even wood chips have their uses nowadays - they're compressed into planks to make handsome furniture like this cocktail cabinet, not to mention the rest of the suite - including the unit bookshelves. Very modern chips off the old block.

Here's a device we've all longed for - and so simple!

That's one way of testing the springs - but a rather more scientific way subjects a chair to the weight of a 16-stone man - and if you really give science its head you may produce something like the latest creation by Emmett - seen here with his Rock-a-Bye Bed. The only snag is that parts are difficult to find.

Something more orthodox, madam? Certainly, and we'll test it with the tireddest object known to science - a news cameraman at the end of a day's shooting.

Go easy with that music - you'll wake him up!
