THE LOST PUP.

The name? "Midget". One of thousands of lost puppies. The eyes? One blue and one brown. The address? Nobody knows. The telephone number? Well, perhaps she was trying to call it from a London telephone booth when they found her. The R.S.P.C.A. took her to their Willesden home, where for a time she was just another lost pup, and then somehow her picture got into the papers. In less than no time, over 2,000 callers had rung up to adopt her and very soon she had said goodbye to her friends and was on her way to a home of her own.

The lucky girl is little Mary Stewart of Twickenham. And the other 2,000 callers? Perhaps they'll give homes to the R.S.P.C.A.'s charges, who didn't get their pictures in the papers!
