

HUGBY: ENGLAND v. SCOTLAND:

Scotland, in dark shirts, kick off against England in the last Rugby international of the season. And it's a determined side they're fighting, for an English victory will make a clean sweep of the Calcutta Cup, the International Championship, and the Triple Crown. At first Scotland manage to hold their own in the loose - but only just. They stop some English rushes, but their own three-quarter line isn't quite fast enough to break through the English defence. Every time, the English forwards are on to them like a pack of wolves.

Smith tries to kick - but Butterfield grabs it and streaks for the line!

Butterfield to Davies - and he's over! No luck with the conversion - but England start the second half three up and fighting hard.

Full back Challis takes a penalty kick for England...

And now they're six up! But Scotland soon have their chance to reduce the gap with a penalty of their own. Ken Scotland takes it.

And it's a beauty!

England's three-quarters are on the move again. It's a change to see some open play, after all the mad-baths we've been having recently!

Dangerously near the Scottish lines again - Phil Davies is brought down - it's loose - but the ref. calls for a scrum.

Higgins gets it away - he's brought down, but passes to Peter Thompson, who bulldozes through for a magnificent try!

And Bob Challis makes sure of the extra couple.

Not long to go now - and the powerful English scrum are really on top of the game. Right in front of the posts, they heel to scrum half Jeeps - he's pulled down - a quick scramble - but stand-off Bertlett is there, and gets it away to Higgins.

And it's over the line for the final try, clinching England's three-in-one victory! What a finish to the season!
