

ASTON VILLA v. WEST BROMWICH ALBION:

Aston Villa - in the plain shirts, kick off against West Bromwich Albion at Wolverhampton - and it's a hard-fought game right from the start. Villa are first on the attack, but Jim Sanders gets it away, and Albion counter-attack swiftly.

Left winger Roy Horobin has it - he passes across to Brian Whitehouse - who scores brilliantly from 20 yards out!

Elated by this quick success, Albion try again - and for a few hectic seconds it looks as though they'll make it! But the Villa Defence hold on by the skin of their teeth, and the danger's past - for the moment.

Roy Horobin attacking again - he centres - but Nigel Sims is there.

A determined lot, these Albion forwards - but Villa keep their heads. And their coolness pays dividends, for they're soon on the move for a lightning equaliser!

One all, and the Albion defence are soon fighting off another assault. But they hold their own, and hit back.

Just before the interval, the steady Albion pressure reaps its reward, and they start the second half with a two-one lead. For a long time they're fighting hard to keep it - and neither side can make any impression on the other's defence.

Bill Mydswoough centres - and Jim Sanders clears.

Now the Villa goal is threatened - but this threat, too, is averted. West Brom seem to have the match in their pocket - and no one's more surprised than they when a Villa counterattack evens the score - so it's a replay after all!
