THE MAYFLOWER ARRIVES IN AMERICA:

Mayflower the Second has crossed the Atlantic. The 53-day voyage that touched the imagination of the world has triumphantly succeeded. All America acclaims the feat and President Eisenhower has congratulated the Captain.

Mayflower the Second, replica of the ship in which the Pilgrim Fathers' sailed to America 337 years ago, had to be towed for the last few miles as she was becalmed. But that couldn't be helped. Commander Villiers and his adventurous crew had proved that in the age of oil and steam men can still be found to cross the Atlantic in a small ship under sail.

The World salutes the men and the vessel, They formed a link between a distance age and the present, between Britain and the great nation of the West which the Pilgrim Fathers and similar men of stout heart and high principle helped to found.
