DEMOLITION OF BERLIN STATION

Lehrter Bahnhof was the Berlin terminus station for all trains coming from Hamburg and North Germany. It was destroyed by bombs and after the partition of Berlin was put out of service. The ruins of the once famous station near the Reichstag were now demolished by the East German railway authorities.

However, West German stations still issued tickets to Berlin - Lehrter Bahnhof! Here the last ticket is being printed in Kiel. Incidentally, the girl in the fashionable white dress is in charge of the demolition squad!
