GUATEMALA MOURNS
A PATRIOT!

In Guatemala, a nation pays its last respects to a fallen leader.

President Carlos Castillo Armas - his cap on top of the casket - makes his last journey to his family tomb. At 42, he was cut down by an assassin's bullet.

The new President - former Vice President Luis Gonzalez Lopez - is among the mourners.

After ousting a communist-led regime, Castillo sought a moderate path toward a stable government. He was the victim of violence - but his country follows constitutional order peacefully, and today sadly.
