HISTORICAL STEAMTRAM PAYS TRIBUTE TO THE PAST...

Length: 50 metres.

A spectacular appearance in this age of electricity and atom-energy is a historical steamtram, which please its holiday-goers near Arnhem. Three times a day this steamtram travels the 19½ kilometres between Bestenhuizen and Boesburg.

This year it will be the last summer that people can get a good idea of "historic travelling".

The pitby little locomotive, which, because of its shape is often called "ben-tram) retired in 1926 but it is doing well now.

What a time when people still had time to potter along in this romantic way. The steamtram covers the distance in 45 minutes, modern busses in 14 minutes.

Just as in ancient times the steamtram is escorted in the narrow streets of Boesburg, by a man with the red flag.

Farewell, old, easy-going days.....!
