

MISS GREAT BRITAIN 1957.

Competing at Morecambe for the title of Miss Great Britain 1957, 42 lovely girls face judges Joe Lane, Ida Gastoni, Charles Eade, Bob Monkhouse and Tony Britton. Among them are Leila Williams from Walsall - Sonia Hamilton from London -

Jane Dawson from Ellesmere Port, Doreen Nicholson from Bradford.

Marilyn Davies from Stockport. All this beauty's overwhelming but bear up, chaps, there's more to come - Margaret Rowe from London, for example.

Here they are, the final eight - and while judges make up their minds who's to be Miss Great Britain, you could almost hear a safety-pin drop. But at last they decide - it's 20-year-old Leila Williams, the drama student from Walsall.

Leila wins a thousand pounds and the Sunday Dispatch rose bowl - plus a trip to Finland for the British Overseas Fair. Lucky Leila!
