HOW CHARLES WILL LIVE.

At Gresham School, in Berkshire, where Prince Charles will be spending the next few years of his life, the joint headmasters, Mr. Peter Beck (on the left) and Mr. Mark Wheeler - show Pathé News what those years will be like. There will be no feather-bedding for the heir to the throne. When the Queen saw these beds, she told her son: "You won't be able to bounce on that!"

No singing in the bath, either. For Gresham is a "no nonsense" school, where the boys are brought up tough. Misbehaviour in class earns the traditional punishment - in the traditional place. Still, not to worry; there will be plenty to eat when the dinner-bell goes. Which is just as well - for learning to be a king, or learning any other job for that matter, tends to give you an appetite!
