BRAEMAR GATHERING:

The Braemar Royal Highland Society has been in existence for 139 years - and in that time its annual Gathering has become renowned in many lands. It is a "must" on the Royal programme, and the whole family is here again this year to watch the dancing and the various sporting events. In spite of a wet morning the dancing loses none of its traditional charm.

John Hunter puts the stone

And it's a winner! But when he tries to repeat his performance, with a hammer, he's not quite so lucky.

Henry Gray swings the hammer - and makes himself this year's champion. In the Cumberland style wrestling, the reigning champion, A. Bell, holds his own against a tough challenger. Prince Charles is having a wonderful time - particularly during the tossing of the caber, the most spectacular event of a colourful gathering which is different from anything else in the world.
