

OCEAN VOLCANO:

This is the world's newest volcano, actually being born. It burst into furious life without warning, out of the Atlantic seabed, a quarter of a mile from one of the islands in the Azores, and a flying cameraman records its spectacular eruption.

A cone of lava rises around the volcano's mouth. Already it's 40 feet high and 700 feet long.

Mother Earth doesn't often blow her top - but when she does, it's quite a sight!
