

ENGLAND V. FRANCE.

SOCCKER:

It's only the second time that England and France have met at Wembley - and the first was a draw. The French kick off this time, but white-shirted England are determined this one won't be a draw. They step the rush, and French goalie Claude Abbes is very soon under fire. Right winger Bryan Douglas wriggles through.

And Timmy Taylor heads a beauty!

The French forwards hit back - England's defence are nearly caught out,... But their luck holds.

France tries again. Don Howe is beaten - but Eddie Hopkinson takes it comfortably and throws upfield.

A long one from Haynes comes to Robson, who shoots - a lovely save by Abbes!

Johnny Haynes has it again - he pushes it out to the wing. Bryan Douglas tussles with the goalie - Bobby Robson's ready and it's a gift!

Two goals up, and England are on top of their form. Haynes starts another attack.

A beauty through the middle - and Taylor nets number three!

Second half, and the French are fighting hard to make good the lost ground.

Right half Rene Dominge beats Edwards, and shoots - but Hopkinson turns it round the post.

Now Bruno Bellini has a try - he's challenged by Wright and Byrne - he's through - Eddie Hopkinson dives - and Bellini misses an empty goal!

England are on the move again, and it looks as though the French have shot their bolt! The ball comes to Tom Finney - and that's very nearly number four!

But number four isn't far away. Finney's back again, wriggling through the French defence - out to Douglas.

Douglas to Robson - and that's it! A four-nil victory for England! Any questions?
