PRIZE FOR GUYS:

Outside a Manchester cinema there's an unusual queue. To be quite frank, it's only half human. No reflection on anybody - the human half is very human - wise guys with their eyes on a prize. "Penny for the Guy" is chicken-feed round here - the cinema manager has offered a large box of fireworks for the best effort - and some of the local dads are going to be asking what's happened to that old suit.

Singing star Russ Hamilton, is the judge - and with so much creative talent about, he's got quite a job on his hands. Before a spellbound audience, he awards the prize to a joint effort by Billy Waddock and Tony and Terry O'Tole. We might have guessed - another Irish-trained winner!
