

MAPLE LEAF SPECIAL:

In Paddington Station stands a special train which should help to earn a lot of money for Britain. Its job - to carry 50 top Canadian business men - the biggest-ever trade mission to this country - on an 1,100-mile tour of Britain's industrial centres. Car manufacturer, Sir William Rootes chats with Mr. Gordon Chubbill, Canada's Minister of Trade, and other members of the mission.

Canada plans eventually to increase her British imports by £250-million a year - two and a half times the present figure. No wonder her trade envoys get the red-carpet treatment - it should be well worth the money!
