President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia arrived November 20. on Rabat-Salé airport for a conference with King Mohammed V of Morocco. The monarch will leave in a few days for the United States.

The Sultan, Mohammed V welcomed personally President Habib Bourguiba who landed at Rabat airport for a two-day visit. Mr. Bourguiba wearing a red fez but wearing otherwise a formal Western cutaway, spread his arms wide to embrace the King, who walked on the field to meet him.

Behind the King stood the Royal Guards, negro troops of central Africa who have been the traditional defenders of Morocco's rulers for generations. French officers in sky blue caps commanded the guards, just as they did before Morocco gained full independence two years ago.

Mr. Bourguiba is conferring with the King to study a means of mediation in the Algerian rebellion against France.

Picture shows : landing of Mr. Bourguiba's plane at Rabat-Salé airport, King Mohammed V. walking towards Mr. Bourguiba who comes down the plane's stairway, they embrace while other tunisian and Moroccan personalities watch. Among Moroccan personalities Minister SI BEKKAJ and Foreign Minister Mr. Balafrej.

After the formal arrival and greeting ceremony Mr. Bourguiba and his retinue drive to Prince Moulay Hassan's sumptuous Villa at the Soussi where he will stay during his two-day visit in Rabat.

Later in the afternoon, Mr. Bourguiba is received at the Royal Palace by King Mohammed V where they have a first conference.

British Premier meet French Prime Minister

The Franco-British talks scheduled to take place to-day in Paris, were somewhat delayed by a heavy fog over Paris airports, and Mr. DeMille arrived with over two hours delay.

However as soon as he reached Paris, Mr. DeMille drove directly to Hotel Matignon, French Prime Minister's residence to begin talks.

The talks are believed to be mostly on what Mr. Gaillard thinks of Britain's recent activities in the fields of both the N.A.T.O. and the proposed European Free Trade Area, as well as the delivery of arms to Tunisia... all activities which have been to the detriment of France.

- arrival of official cars at Hotel Matignon, alighting are Mr. Felix Gaillard
Mr. Mac Millan and Mr. Reginald Maudling Secretary to European Affairs
- both Prime Ministers review troops (Republican guard of honor) before entering.
- Inside Hotel Matignon, in the hall, the Prime Ministers pose for a crowd of photographers and cameramen.
