Toronto honors a native son with a dinner on "Lester B. Pearson Day" - The 1957 winner of the Nobel Prize for Peace congratulated by Sir Leslie Munro of New Zealand, president of the UN General Assembly.

Other guests are Lieutenant Gov. Breithaupt of Ontario and French Amb. Francis Lacoste.

Some two-thousand persons attend the dinner for Pearson who sold newspapers here as a boy and later became external affairs minister and UN Assembly president.

He urges that the United States and Russia begin serious talks now.

The City of Toronto gives him a silver water jug.

His wife receives a photo of herself and her honored husband.

And his 89 year old mother receives a portrait of her son with the Nobel Prize at Oslo. A night to remember for the first Canadian ever to win the coveted award
