

WALES v. AUSTRALIA, RUGBY.

The Australian fifteen take the field for the first Test of their tour. It's at Cardiff Arms Park, and their opponents are Wales - full of confidence, since Newport and Cardiff have already mastered the Wallabies. Australia attack early in poor visibility; but Wales - with the big squares on their backs - soon capture the ball. G. Davies passes to fly-half James - who kicks for touch.

The Wallabies' attacks are orthodox and the Welsh defence has little difficulty in dealing with most of them. But first blood goes to the Australians all the same - when hooker Brown passes to second-row forward Miller.

Second half, and the Australian three-quarter don't want to leave all the scoring to the pack. But they'll have to do better than this to pierce the Welsh defence!

Wales are awarded a penalty - full-back Davies takes the kick...

And that's the equaliser!

Encouraged, Wales get down to some real work. From a scrum, the ball comes to right winger Collins - and he's over!

Wales 6, Australia 3. Then a drop goal makes it 9-3. And however hard the Wallabies try, that's how it stays!
