

WHEN TWO GLOVERS
MEET - POW!

Fistic fireworks at Long Island's Sunnyside Gardens in the Golden Gloves regional tournament. Irving Wolff, light trunks, tossing leather with Louis Rapacilo. And what these amateurs lack in skill they make up in fighting spirit.

Rapacilo takes the decision.

For the fight fans, plenty of action, as Walter Moll tangles with Steve Maiorano. The haymakers are flying. These youngsters really dish it out in these bouts sponsored by the New York News welfare fund.

Watch Moll's beautiful bolo punch - little short on range, that's all.

Maiorano wins as he floors Moll.

Now it's Richard Rockman versus Frank Beggs - 135-pounders who let go with broadsides of lefts and rights - or what have you.

It's a running battle with Rockman rocking Beggs into the ropes.

Another salvo and Frankie's defenses are crumbling.

Beggs is just about at "the end of his rope" as the Ref steps in. Rockman is the victor.
