

BRITISH DANCERS' TRIUMPH,

In Frankfurt's Congress Hall, Dr. and Frau Wolf dance the rumba - part of a contest between six of the Continent's best amateur couples, and six British couples of similar standing. And the competition is tough!

Next item on the programme - the formation dancing, which calls for timing and teamwork as well as grace and skill, and which is becoming increasingly popular in dancing tournaments all over Europe.

But it's still the couples who take pride of place - and Peter Eggleton and Diane Gradwell's quickstep is one reason why the British team finish up the winners.

And the Frankfurt audience agree with the verdict!
