

WESTMINSTER DOG SHOW IN NEW YORK CITY
MADISON SQUARE GARDEN

Every dog has his day, and for an elite few, this is The Day. The Westminster Dog Show at Madison Square Garden. The back-stage primping and fussing is well-nigh unbelievable. But then this is the most ultra-ultra of all the canine world's blue ribbon events. Just the thought of a Westminster trophy sets mouths watering. It's hard to tell who's more excited, the dogs or the people. In two and a half days of judging the hundreds of entries are winnowed down to a select few. Each best in breed, magnificent specimens all. Some of the more popular varieties these days, very well represented, too. Picking the best of a breed is no easy task. An infinitely greater problem is picking the best of 'em all. This year, it takes the judge well on till midnight to choose a standard poodle, the first since 1935, is Westminster's Best in Show. Champion Puttencove Promise. A proud poodle and justly so.
