

VARIETY HONOURS NUFFIELD:

Variety Clubs International honours that great philanthropist, Lord Nuffield - and Prince Philip, who's a life member of the International, is here to present its Golden Heart award for outstanding service to humanity. But first, Mr. Mike Frankovitch has something for Prince Philip himself. A cheque for £5,000 for his favourite cause, the National Playing Fields Association. That's only one of the many causes Variety Clubs International has helped, for in the past 22 years it has given over £14,000,000 to youth charities. Wing Commander Chidnery, the Duke's Private Secretary, is among the guests who hear Prince Philip present the Golden Heart to a man whose philanthropic efforts, during his long and successful career, have been on a similar scale.

"Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen. I've been asked to present this Golden Heart this evening but before I do so I would like to say how very delighted I am to be here this evening. I can say that in all consciousness because I did not know I was going to be given a cheque for £5,000 for turning up! (Laughter) Now Lord Nuffield, I've been asked to present you with this Golden Heart Award which I do with the very greatest pleasure on behalf of both the Variety Club and of all the people who have benefitted from your benefactions!"
