

CANNES FILM FESTIVAL:

Of course, the French Riviera's not quite the same since it broke off diplomatic relations with Lady Docker, but such attractions as the Cannes Film Festival keep it going somehow. At Nice Airport, British stars Richard Todd and Carole Lealey arrive for this gathering of glamour and talent. Jayne Mansfield and husband Micky Hargitay (that's him with the mussels) cause a bit of traffic jam, but you expect that with so many outstanding personalities around.

Associated British throws a luncheon party for the stars - including an attractive Russian newcomer, Eugena Lillian. There are enough nationalities here to make Soho look monotonous by comparison - but then films are as international in their appeal as food.

A smaller Anglo-French get-together - Cathia Carie, John Fraser, Carole Lealey, Richard Todd and Nadine Talier - getting some salt in their hair. Vive l'Entente Cordiale!
