Debenhams, a famous London shop, displays its "Calypso Collection" of beachwear, inspired perhaps by Princess Margaret's visit to the West Indies and the current interest in the new Federation.

Models in order of appearance: -

Marlene Honour wears a white cotton dress with orange poppies and with petticoat.

Elizabeth Duke wears a multi-coloured nylon swimsuit with black background, and a pink towelling jacket. She removes the jacket to show the swimsuit.

Anne White wears blue shorts and shirt with a boat design, with a beach bag and yellow "cookie" hat. She turns to show back of ~~her~~ shirt.

Jenny Meredith wears a green, white and gold button-through dress, and a bikini with spot design. She removes dress to show bikini.

Brenda Cocchi wears blue striped jeans and tunic, with long beads and blue hat.

Jenny Meredith wears a bikini and cape with cherry design. She takes off cape to show bikini.

Three models sit down to eat bananas. Final shot is of Jenny Meredith.

BAG FASHIONED LINE

This is a simple bag, the humble hemp-bag, which is now risen to the honor of high fashion: women's dresses are inspired to this line.

The freak of fashion has put women into bags, on every hour of the day..... we wonder how they are able to step, so close in.

There is even a bag for dancing..... and also a swollen bag which turns into the balloon line.

This line revolution appears to be a good opportunity for tailors to make money.

Since it is said that such fashioned dresses makes look younger, no wonder that an aged woman like this one endeavored to be up to date .

We guessed the dustman - the bag-expert - could give us some information about bag inspiration... but this is his professional secret, so we had to apply to a .... relentless follower and proselyt wearing a pure cloth-bag.
