

URANIUM CITY IS BORN.

There's a Uranium rush in central Ontario. Mined there is the richest deposit of that well nigh invaluable mineral, the raw material of atomic power. The world had little use for Uranium before the nuclear age; now it wants every ton that can be obtained. The Ontario discovery draws into insignificance the famous gold rushes of 50 years ago. The output here is 35,000 tons of ore per day. So the new settlement at Elliot Lake is Boom Town on a scale never seen before.

Already, 25,000 men have surged upon Elliot Lake. Shopping centres have mushroomed in what was a wilderness. A cinema is the modern substitute for the rip rearing saloons of Gold Rush days. In no time at all the place has become a Uranium capital. Prosperous Canada has enriched the world.
