

In the men's final, it's Australia's Mal Anderson and Ashley Cooper. Mal serves in the near court. And you're seeing the two top world tennis stars battle it out for the American title. Cooper's point. Anderson serves. And for sensational tennis, watch this rally. Anderson serves. Cooper has taken a lead in the fifth and final set. Then with victory within his reach - the Australian and Wimbledon champ sprains his ankle. It looks for a moment as though he will be forced to forfeit the match just when he's gained a slim lead. But he comes back gamely to win the next two games - here's match point. Ashley Cooper is the world tennis champ for 1958!
