

58/76.

JUNGLE ANIMALS LIKE

HOME LIFE:

Domestic pets in Rhodesia aren't limited to cats and dogs. Jan Posselt catches Eland, when they're young, hoping that if the little elephant and mongoose don't monopolise his attention he'll be able to breed them. Meanwhile his cat thinks the mongoose is quite a handful. The little elephant was found, alone and forlorn, abandoned by its mother. So were the lion cubs. They're delightfully playful, but when they grow up, there'll have to be an understanding as to who's boss. Still, there's nothing like having a few animals about the house to make life full of interest. All you have to hope is that they don't become so fond of you they could almost eat you.