

DE GAULLE GETS MIXED RECEPTION

Bordeaux left little doubt that it will give a pretty solid vote for De Gaulle in the referendum. Communists apart - and they couldn't get near enough to make themselves a nuisance @ the people acclaimed the Premier in unmistakable fashion. Rennes, in Brittany, was no less enthusiastic. De Gaulle was nearing the end of his vote-seeking campaign, and though there was some opposition wherever he went the masses were overwhelmingly in his favour. It was the same story in Strasbourg.

Perhaps De Gaulle's reception was greatest of all at Lille, the town where he was born.
