

58/84MINK FOR MILADY.

To begin with - Canadian Wild Mink - about £2,000 worth of winter wear for the smart, and lucky woman. Displayed at Quegline's for charity by National Fur. And for about eight-hundred, a diadem mink bolero. Mink's the thing for the woman to whom the odd pound or so doesn't matter. A wrap of Arctic Fox fits the bill when, having said good-night to the duchess, a girl goes to her car. The charity benefiting by the show, was the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Comparatively, cheap, but delightful none the less, are the coat and jacket in black and white Syrian Kid.

Valeria Hobson graced the display and saw next a chinilla wrap.

On the whole the accent was on mink; either wild or ranched. An exquisite Silverblm, full length coat would make any wife envied. Cost, seventeen-fifty. What about a society for the prevention of cruelty to husbands? .
