

TANKER PLANE CRASHES INTO NORFOLK HOMES!

A few moments before, this had been a typical residential block - now the fiery scene of six deaths. The bolt-out-of-the-blue accident occurred when a stricken Navy tanker plane was unable to reach the nearby Air Station at Norfolk, Virginia. The craft plowed into two houses, killing two babies and injuring their mother. The four crewmen on the plane were killed. When the fires are brought under control, a grim task for searchers. An attempted emergency landing at Norfolk ends in Tragedy!

RECORD SNOW IN UPSTATE NEW YORK!

This is Oswego, New York, where the term "snowed under" is putting it mildly. If you look closely at this downtown junction, you can see the wreaths and decorations in preparation for Christmas. And then the weather came along and overloaded the place with seasonal atmosphere. For six days, the snow keeps coming with very few breaks until the average level has piled up to a fantastic six-and-a-half feet. By far the worst snowfall ever to bury this upstate New York city of 23 thousand persons. With drifts piles as high as 20 feet, roof cave-ins become a menace. Most businesses shut down. And - good news for the kids - so do the schools. But generally the natives feel they have enough snow, thank you, and don't wish to be reminded winter hasn't even begun yet!
