

NEW BABY DEVICE.

Ever since Eve had to cane Abel before she was able to cope with Cain, the problem of keeping babies safe and quiet has been a major one - on which babies have their own views, and aren't afraid to express them. But a novel idea from the Dutch town of Barneveld can be stretched far enough to meet Mother's requirements and baby's. Perhaps the inventor got the idea during the Liberation, from an English parachutist - but it certainly works!

The invention's specially useful with a big family - just hook 'em up in rows, bobbing up and down like this!

Not only does it keep them quiet - it develops the muscles which may of course add to Mother's problems in a year or two. But this lot'd make a smashing team of bell-ringers, wouldn't they?