MENDERES FIT AGAIN.

The Turkish Prime Minister, Mr. Menderes, visited Redhill County Hospital soon after he left the London Clinic, where he had been recovering from the shock of his air crash of the previous week. Still under treatment at Redhill were two other survivors of the tragic accident; one of them the Premier's valet, Karim Nefes, whom he now wished a quick recovery. Nefes sustained head injuries and a broken arm. He rejoiced to see his master again, and said he prayed for a safe return to Turkey for all who had been preserved. It will be remembered that when the Viscount airliner crashed while trying to land at Gatwick, fifteen of the party were killed. Mr. Menderes thanked the doctors and the Matron, Miss Nichols, for the care and skill with which they had treated his fellow countrymen.

Leaving Redhill, the Turkish Premier went to Oaklands Park Farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Bailey. Pressmen were there in force, as the farmer and his wife came to greet their distinguished callers. Mrs. Bailey, once a nurse, found Mr. Menderes and two other men staggering from the aircraft wreckage on the evening of the crash. She took them indoors and revived them with brandy till an ambulance arrived. The Premier entered the house again, in happier circumstances, to thank his benefactors. The accident prevented him from attending the Cyprus talks, but it introduced him to an England farm and two charming people. Anthony and Margaret Bailey have made a friend of Mr. Menderes. He has invited them to spend a holiday in Turkey as his guests.
