

PRINCESS VISITS LLOYDS.

In the vast Underwriters' Hall, Lloyds suspended business for a time. The historic Register of Shipping, received Princess Margaret, in its new, very modern premises. The Lutins Bell was rung twice.

Twice means good news, on this occasion, the royal visit. One ring, bad news. The Bullion ship Lutins was sunk 160 years ago. Lloyds carried the whole insurance. One of their bad days! The casualty book is still written up with a quill pen. There was no doubt of today's assessment of the Princess - A.L. at Lloyds.
