

H.M. PARTY FOR FILM LEADERS.

Coming aboard H.M.S. Victorious in Portsmouth Harbour is Admiral of the Fleet Earl Mountbatten - but he's here in a special role, as President of the Royal Naval Film Corporation, to greet leaders of the film industry such as Sir Philip Warter, and Mr. C.J. Latta of Associated British Picture Corporation, stars Kenneth Moore and Jack Hawkins, and Mr. D.J. Goodlatte, als of Associated British.

Mr. Herbert Wilcox shakes hands with their Lordships. All this is the Navy's way of saying "Thank-you" to the industry for the special arrangements they make to ensure that Jack sees the latest film, in his own ship, wherever he may be.

Sir Alec Guinness is another distinguished representative of the acting side of the industry - and on the right Mr. Skouras from America - and Stanley Baker with Jack Hawkins and Kenneth Moore, who's got something to show the Navy.

Only an aircraft carrier would send a party this size up in the lift, all at one go! On the flight deck, Sir Philip Warter has a word with Richard Todd - and there's American film chief Mr. Jack Warner. And R.N. Film Corporation General Manager, Captain Pisey.

Like the rest of us, the Navy enjoys going to the pictures; so it's grateful to the film industry for making it possible. And when the Navy says "Thank you", it says it in a big way!
