

CAMERA SNAPS BANK THIEF.

A New York bank installs remote-control movie cameras - to make things harder for any would-be raiders. And one day someone presses a button and catches this! Look to the left of the second pillar - a raider grabs a thousand dollars and takes off, dropping half of it on the way. But the F.B.I. will know what he looks like, because cashier Miss Kilkenny has pressed the button. Also, by the way, the boss will know who did something about it!

This, of course, is a fisherman's dream come true; imagine being able to prove your story about the one that got away! Nice work Miss Kilkenny...