

BEST GUYS WIN PRIZE.

They take their guys seriously in Manchester. Every young shaver who fancies his particular work of art makes his way towards the Appolo Cinema to enter it in the annual competition, But what's the matter with father? Nothing really; just too mean to let the poor guy borrow his pants.

It looked like a record entry. You can't imagine being without Guy Fawkes. He came unstuck in his plan to reform Parliament, but he provided millions of kids with just the outlet they want at this time of the year. And here at the Apello the winners can supplement their Penny For The Guy collections with boxes of fireworks.

Some of the guys were so good, you almost thought them real.

Despite the interruption the judges carried on. They included that popular comic Ken Dodd, almost a guy himself.

The lucky winners landed a three-guinea box of fireworks. In their part of the city the Fifth went off with a super Bang.
