

BUS CLEAN IN A JIFFY.

In a suburban bus garage London Transport is trying to supersede the old way of cleaning by something much quicker. This sort of labour is hard to find nowadays, so it might have meant dirty London buses if a new machine had'nt come to the rescue. Now see how it works. When the bus is in position, a touch of the switches sets the brushes turning, and the water spraying. First, half a minute through the water, then a finish off by the brushes.

Just under a minute. All the wild cats in the world can't make it go on strike!
