NEWS FLASHES.

Nearly all Hollywood went to the Imperial Waif Ball, the orphan charity founded six years ago by Jane Russell. Jane was there with Bob Waterfield, her lucky husband, in company with Richard Egan and his wife. The charity arranges the adoption of orphan children from other countries. A car was the lettery prize on this occasion.

17-year-old Princess Marie Cecillie of Prussia, and her parents, were the guests of honour. It was her coming-out ball, and she appeared to have made up her mind she was going to enjoy herself.

When the dancing began, Marie Cecillie, didn't lag behind. Her partner was Edd Byrnes. A wonderful ball for a fine charity.

Over to Germany, where the young Princess comes from, through not this part of the country. Munich has come a long way from the Hitler Beer Garden days. Now it held the all-German Rock-'n-Roll championship. It wasn't long before the evening really warmed up.
