developed positive : 37 meters - 125 ft

At the time the Hungarian question is again brought before the United Nations, and the Catholic faith is again molested in "behind the Iron curtain" countries, over two thousand refugees who have found a new life and home in France, but have not forgotten their countries, Saturday night, climbed up the stairs to the SACRE COEUR church, on the top of Montmartre Hill

Praying, and holding torches, they were also carrying heavy wooden crosses with chains symbolizing their countries, held under communist rule, behind the Iron Curtain.

Delegations of Rumania, Hungary, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Albania, Bulgaria, etc... took part in this procession, deeply moving in the Paris December chill night.

An all night vigil at the Sacre Coeur church followed the procession up the steps to Montmartre, with prayers offered for the freedom of faith in their countries, and freedom of their countries.
