TRUCKS JUMP IN THE LAKE.

Not for nothing is the Mechanical Transport Championship at Borden called the Army Grand National. Men who can do this sort of thing can drive anything, anywhere.

Star event on the rough riding course was the light vehicles race, which included a little obstacle in the shape of a pond, five feet deep. It showed that shallow water isn't the barrier it used to be. On the other side they had to turn round and come back. In the race were four teams of two men each.

This sort of thing is part of the routine training of Army drivers at the School here. But the championship events were open to all units with motor transport. One or two casualties, naturally.

Winners of the water event were the team led by Sergeant Major Asbury, R.A.S.C.
