YOUR FURS ARE HERE:

It's Ranch Mink, black, beautiful, every woman's dream, shown by the National Fur Company at the Dorchester. Cost? Two thousand-eight-hundred-and-fifty.

Would you like it my dear? Less breath-taking for whoever has to sign the cheque is a cape-bolero in grey ermine, for a mere £375.

Still popular in 1960, there'll be Leopard. A lovely coat here, at 459.

But, of course, next to diamonds, mink is any woman's best friend. Ilona modelled a Black Mink Jacket, trimmed with Silver Blu. At £880, not expensive.

A superb Silver Blu Mink. £2,195. For this sort of thing the husband must either win the pools or put in another wage claim.
