SPORT ON ICE.

On the Garmisch hockey rink it was the next thing to murder. Czechoslovakia (in the lighter jerseys) versus the German Olympic team. The Germans beat them at Munich, and now the Czechs were out to win, fair or foul.

She likes it tough. Certainly chosen the right day.

When the hot war on the cold ice was all over, Germany'd won, two-nil.

The German team, away first, British next, and after them the Swiss team, in the World Four Man Bobaligh Championship, at Cortina, Italy. High skill and strong nerves demanded. Speeds of eighty miles an hour were hit up by all the competitors.

The mile-long track drops 550 feet and has sixteen sharp bends, all negotiated with superb skill, at top speed, by the Italians. A split second faster than the Germans, the Italians team became world champions.
