

INDDOR TRACK

The New York A.C. meet presnets a speedy picture in Hayes Jones, Eastern Michigan flyer -- specialist at turning in a hurdles-sprint double. He clears the barriers over the sixty yard route in seven and two tenths... then takes the sixty yard dash, for his double win! In the Baxter Mile, the top interest centers on Uncle Sam's Olympic hope, Dyrol Buleson. Byt in sports, it's the unexpected that can-- so often, does happen. As witness now: Buruleson is stepping to the front with a lap to go.... the competition, in the person of five-foot-six inch Jim Beatty is refusing to acknowledge the advance predictions. He's matching the vaunted Bureson sprint with a finishing kick of his own! In his last stride, Beatty takes it! A meet record, four-oh-five and four-tenths for the mighty little North Carolina alumnus!

ALL EYES ON SQUAW VALLEY

The Eighth Olympic Winter Games -- at Squaw Valley, California high on the east side of the crest of the Sierra Nevada (the Snowy Range) in Tahoe National Forest. Why is it called "Squaw Valley" you may ask. Well, when Washoe Indian braves journeyed far into the mountains to hunt deer, their braves made camp in this valley. Today, it is mecca for hundred os Olympic athletes... and this was the last monute scene as the big show began its dramatic run. In the imposing sixteen million dollar setting at Squaw Valley, Winter Olympics history will be made!
