MEET MISS ENGLAND.

So much loveliness all together dazzles the eye - man's eye anyway. 30 Miss England hopefuls came up for selection, at the London Lyceum by a panel of experts, or at any rate, well known sport, film and T.V. personalities. For example, Neil McCullum and Jean Clarke. All the girls have won local contests, and here at the Lyceum one of them (Barbara Smith of Walthamstow) for example, would be Miss England. Josie Dwyer, of Bury, a lovely lass from Lancashire. Davina Taylor, London, is a model.

All the judges were impressed by Joan Boardman, a tall beauty who throbs male hearts in Wallasey.

Now the short list of seven line up for the panel to make the big choice. Statistics can be very difficult, but at last the title of Miss England went to Joan Boardman. She wins a glamorous wardrobe and a trip to Florida. For the Miss Universe contest. Her crown was placed by Peter West.

Josie Dwyer (on the right) and Christine Steadman, were second and third. A beautiful evening.
