

2-241101
60/32.

COMET IN MOSCOW.

A Comet Four B. arrived at Moscow Airport from London, inaugurating the new service between the two capitals. The pipers played to strengthen Anglo-Russian friendship. We hope somebody told the Russians, or they might have got a different idea. Why pipers? Because the Chairman of B.E.A. Lord Douglas, added weight to the occasion by making the trip himself, and he's a Scot. The other day, folks living near London Airport complained to him about the noise of Comets. Now Moscow's getting a bit of it. The Comet will make two trips a week, carrying 86 passengers in three-and-a-half hours, half the previous flying time.