NEWS IN FLASHES.

Safer motoring was the attraction which drew crowds and personalities (like racing ace Jack Brabham) to Regent's Park. Without a safety belt that was the effect of sharp braking. Take another look. It could be you.

Singer Ann Shelton joined Jack Brabham to try out the safety straps which are recommended by the British Safety Council, organisers of this demonstration. The BSC say that over fifty per cent of injuries could be eliminated by the use of these belts.

In Naples glamorous Jane Russell took up her duties as Godmother to eleven-year-old Andrejs Suritis, a Latvian boy born in a German prison-camp. He is the millionth European migrant to find a new homeland through a scheme sponsored by a committee for European migration. He's bound for America and a new life and with Miss Russell's blessing that's quite a good start.
