HIGH JUMP RECORD FEATURES A.A.U. TRACK

In the A.A.U. championships at Bakersfield, California, high jumper John Thomas sees the wind topple the bar on a record seven-feet, two inch jump. Officials tell him: "Better try again, so there'll be no doubt." And Thomas, the amazing record holder from Boston University, obligingly takes another jump.....gracefully lifting his lanky frame over the bar. The seven-two jump tops all existing outdoor high jump records, including his own.
