NEWS FLASHES.

"As safe as houses" - who invented that phrase? This house in London's Soho makes him look pretty foolish. It just fell down - like that: - in the middle of the day. The owner of this car, fortunately wasn't inside.

His reaction when he saw it was understandable, if unrepeatable. Otherwise, no casualties. The moral is - if you're fond of leaning against buildings, always wear a hat.

We've got used to - and fond of - Dr. Barbara Moore as a national institution. Well she's fast becoming an international institution. John O'Greets to Lands End was small stuff; here she is on the last lap of her 3,000 mile hike across the United States.

There's a big welcome from every kind of fan for the 56-year old footslogger who's just spanned the continent on grass juice and raw carrots. Even our cameraman's nearly overwhelmed by the crush. He's thinking of asking her for a few lessons in footwork.
