

WHITE CITY A.A.A. SPORTS.

The start of the three-mile event in the Three-A's championships at the White City - and as the field of 22 runners settles down, everyone's looking to see if title-holder Bruce Tulloh can do it again, with Derek Ibbotson competing - but it's Ken Eldon making the running, Tulloh's fourth, and Ibbotson's sixth - and lying third is the almost unknown Frank Salvat, of Finchley Harriers - a London magazine designer who trains on beer.

Ibbotson now tries to take the lead - but watch Salvat!

The crowd's going mad, because this is the kind of finish you see once in a lifetime! Frank Salvat streaks ahead like a quarter-miler. Ibbotson and Tulloh are out of sight, 30 yards behind without a hope of catching the unruffled Salvat.

Home and dry - with 4.4 seconds in hand! Not bad going for a man who admits he had a few the night before!
